Dear Cranbury College community

As many of you may already know, Miss Burns will be stepping down as Headteacher of Cranbury College at the end of the academic year to take up the position of Deputy Headteacher at Maiden Erlegh School. You can read her letter here.

While we are thrilled for Miss Burns and the exciting opportunity that awaits her and that she continues her career in the wider trust family of schools, it is with sadness that we will bid farewell to her as Headteacher of Cranbury College.

Under Miss Burns leadership, Cranbury College has progressed in terms of standards, for example the introduction of the school uniform, and the outcomes we achieve for the pupils that attend and with whom we work. Miss Burns has led a thorough review of the curriculum and qualifications, developed the learning environment, reviewed and developed so many systems and processes to ensure pupils are safe and well cared for. She has raised aspirations and developed our support to other schools in the borough.

Miss Burn's dedication, compassion, and unwavering commitment to excellence have been instrumental in shaping the college's development and fostering a culture of achievement and inclusivity. We wish her the very best in her new role and know that she will continue to make a positive impact for children and young people.

We will now embark on a process to find the next headteacher for the school. Over the coming weeks, the Trust will run a national advert and recruitment process to find the right person to take Cranbury College into its next chapter. Meanwhile, Miss Burns and the Senior Leadership Team, in addition to the wider Maiden Erlegh Trust team are committed to ensuring that the transition to new leadership is as smooth as possible.

We will continue to keep you informed about the progress of this recruitment process.

Yours sincerely

Jonathon Peck
Chief Executive Officer

Andy Johnson
